Korean SOJU culture

*If you didn't know already,
Korean's have a thing for drinking.
Just like aussies have beer,
Korea has SOJU.*

*Soju is a clear distilled beverage traditionally made from rice, wheat and barley.
Stornger than beer or wine but weaker than vodka.*

*Soju is traditionally drank during meals as an accompaniment.
Usually paired with Porkbelly BBQ.*

*Koreans drink together
as a way of social interaciton, to build the relationship between family, friends or coworkers.
It truely was the drink for soul
for Koreans.*

*Just remember some rules,
never pour your own drink
and cheers before you take the shot each round!*

*so cheers to tonight
or as we say in Korea,
건배 "Gunbae!"*
